Diabetes mellitus is the most common endocrine metabolic disorder that is multifactorial such as, genetic factor and environment elements. Basically our body breaks down the sugar and carbohydrates into simple sugar as glucose. This glucose is required to the body cells in order to activate the metabolism. This job is done by the hormone called insulin, which produced by beta cells. The person with high blood sugar either will have insulin resistance in the body or deficit production of insulin. The patients with high blood sugar will have symptoms such as, frequent of urination, more thirsty and hungry. Because of such factors, the glucose will start to deposit on blood vessels in heart, kidney which will damage the parts. It can eventually causes heart diseases, kidney diseases and nerve system damage. The threat of a diabetes epidemic is top of the Rome’s list of health concerns right now with some reports claiming that the disease is responsible for 75 per cent of deaths among nationals. That seems like an incredible figure and is a serious problem in the Rome.

Rome (Italian: Roma), the Eternal City, is the capital and largest city of Lazio region. It’s the famed city of the Roman Empire. Rome, as a millenium-long centre of power, culture and having been the cradle of one of the globe’s greatest civilizations ever. The tradition and culture religion, has exerted a huge influence over the world in its roughly 2800 years of existence. The historic center of the city is a UNESCO World Heritage Site. With wonderful palaces, millennium-old churches, grand romantic ruins, opulent monuments, ornate statues and graceful fountains, Rome has an immensely rich historical heritage and cosmopolitan atmosphere, making it one of Europe’s and the world’s most visited, famous, influential and beautiful capitals. Today, Rome has a growing nightlife scene and is also seen as a shopping heaven. It is also being regarded as one of the fashion capitals of the world (some of Italy’s oldest jewelry and clothing establishments were founded in the city). With so many sights and things to do, Rome can truly be classified a “global city”. Pulsus conferences is welcoming all the speakers and participants across the world to stand unite against the medical complication faced by Mankind.
