London is one of the pre-eminent financial centers of the world as the most important location for international finance. London has the fifth largest metropolitan economy in the GDP of the world. It is one of the leading tourist destinations in the world and in 2017 it was ranked as the most visited city in the world with over 66 million visits. Tourism is one of London's prime industries, employing the equivalent of 350,000 full-time workers and the city accounts for 54% of all inbound visitor spending in the UK. The top most-visited attractions in UK were all in London like The British Museum, The National Gallery, Natural History Museum, Tower of London, Southbank center and many more.

There are five airports, though only one is in London. There is the London end of the London Birmingham canal, which was important to the industrial 19th century. The London Underground is a system of electric trains which are in London, United Kingdom. It is the oldest underground railway in the world. It started running in 1863 as the Metropolitan Railway. After the opening the system was copied in many other cities, for example New York and Madrid. Even though it is called the Underground about half of it is above the ground. The "Tube" is a slang name for the London Underground, because the tunnels for some of the lines are round tubes running through the ground. The Underground has got 274 stations and over 408 km of track. From 2006–2007 over 1 billion passengers used the underground.
