NURSE PRACTITIONER 2019: With successful past "Nursing Conferences" We are saying thanks to all your dedicated nurses, nursing assistants, nurse practitioners, CNAs and new nursing grads for making successful conferences with your Grate support.

"Thank you to those who have spent a lifetime of sacrifice and devotion to caring for their patients"

International Nurses Day is observed around the world on 12 May (the anniversary of Florence Nightingale's birth) of each year, to mark the contributions that nurses make to society. Nurses are one of the largest and most vital workforces in healthcare. With the ever-changing processes and continuing advances in hospitals, they still need to meet expectations of both hospital management and patients whilst providing even more complex patient care.

We Request you don't skip a beat or miss an opportunity to honor them with heartfelt appreciation and provide them to grate full carrier in research! We will well come you for your Nursing Week events!

International Nurses Day: History

In 1953, Dorothy Sutherland, an official with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, contacted President Dwight D. Eisenhower proposed to celebrate "Nurses Day". At that time he did not approved her proposal. First time it was celebrated by the International Council of Nurses (ICN) in 1965. In January 1974, 12 May date was declared to celebrate 'International Nurses Day' because on this date Florence Nightingale was born, who is the founder of modern nursing. Every year on this day ICN prepare and distribute International Nurses Day Kit which consists of educational and public information materials which can be used by nurses among public. Let us tell you that National Student Nurse's Day is celebrated on 8 May since 1998 and National Nurses week from 6 May to 12 May since 2003.
