Randhawa is beautiful, no doubt, but it's actually her inner confidence and witty talk that make her even more gorgeous. "Being an army officer's daughter, I regularly shuffled schools and moved to different parts of the country. In the process, I gained a lot of exposure and confidence. That's the reason I am able to connect with people easily and adjust anywhere." As she grew up, Randhawa started receiving compliments—and suggestions to try modelling—from friends. Randhawa, who recently impressed her fans in Rishi Kapoor's Chintuji, says she's glad she heeded their advice.

Randhawa is particular about her daily routine. "As a professional, I understand the importance of being up to the mark in the looks department. I take care of my diet, exercise regularly, sleep well and, of course, play my favourite sport, squash." She doesn't like gaudy makeup, and the star of Tera Mera Ki Rishta? is never seen without her mascara. "Sometimes, I brush up my cheeks with natural products as well." Randhawa, whose upcoming projects include Panchamiya's Mastang Mama, scheduled to be released by the end of this year, has also signed up another movie with Gurdas Mann and is all set to work with Anil Kapoor in a Hindi movie.

Randhawa has her personal favourites when it comes to inspirational beauties. "I have always adored Diana's beauty, while Madhu Bala and Sushmita are two other great personalities whom I admire," says Randhawa. "To be like them, it's not just looks that matter, but the way you talk and carry yourself also go a long way in creating that ever-lasting impression."
