

Welcome Message

Dear Friends & Colleagues,

Earth & Planetary Science, Las Vegas, March 16-17, 2020 – this is the time and place to meet, speak, listen and discuss on subjects we love, know so much about, and which are so very important, not to say vital, for our understanding of the factors affecting and controlling our living conditions on Planet Earth.

Some of you are eminent scientist, some delegates, some senior scientist and hopefully many of you are young researchers in need of broadening the field and depth of knowledge. You all have different backgrounds and primary scientific specialization. You come from all part of the globe. This mixture is ideal for a boundless success. So, please, make up your travel plans and write up your abstract and submit it. Prepare yourself to have great scientific fun; i.e. give a nice (not to say wonderful) talk, listen with an open mind and discuss and share ideas. This is science when it is as best.

Welcome and best wishes, I look forward to meet you all

Nils-Axel Mörner